MARTYRS IN THE SOUTH.—A correspondent of the [illegible] writes from Frankfort, Ky., that he had had an interview with a Philadelphian, a lawyer, who had got out of Savannah to bring home a wife, but who had been kept almost as a prisoner for several months. During that time he was compelled to furnish two substitutes for the rebel army into which he had been balloted. He says:

"The South has all the force in the field that it can possibly raise. Having made the most determined and persistent efforts to furnish men and means for the cause, the people have been most severely taxed, and those at all suspected of Union sentiments or proclivities have been forced to contribute enormous sums. Many of the merchants and professional men have been impoverished by the exactions of the Confederacy."

The strongest and boldest Union man is John E. Ward, formerly our Minister to China, and he is dreadfully persecuted by the rebels, who have arrested him at least twenty times, while attempting to escape, robbed him of his entire property, some $100,000, and threatened several times to hang him. Ward says they can kill him if they like, but that he will never surrender his allegiance to the Federal Government. [illegible] to detest and denounce the miserable abomination known as the Southern Confederacy. He is very anxious to go North, but is so closely watched that he cannot escape. Ward will be assassinated in Savannah unless he succeeds in getting out of the State.

Everywhere one hears the most bitter and violent denunciations of the Federal Government and President Lincoln, and the people declare they will resist to the death all attempts to subjugate them. They declare the Administration designs this as an Abolition war, and that they will perish before they surrender their slaves.

Many of these ultra and hostile opinions, however, are expressed to disguise the real sentiments of those who utter them, and men publicly the most superlative fire-eaters, state privately their strong attachment to the Union, and their secret hope that our arms would soon be successful. Even in Savannah the presence of the Federal army would be hailed with joy by a majority of the people.

NEARLY AN ENGAGEMENT.—Immediately on the receipt of the news of the belligerent attitude of England in relation to the Trent difficulty, the United States steam frigate Lancaster, then lying in the harbor of Panama, double shotted her guns to be prepared for an emergency. On becoming aware of this fact, the British war steamer Tartar, which was lying off the harbor at Taboga, just within reach of the Lancaster's guns, the latter vessel being out of her range, double shotted her guns also, and drew up within fighting distance of the Lancaster.—Fortunately, the next intelligence brought assurances of a peaceful nature, and the hostilities were indefinitely postponed, but the incident serves to show how near we had come to going to war with England, without taking the overt steps. The Lancaster is now on her way to this port. The usual international courtesy of a salute was not exchanged as the latter steamed away from Panama.

ARMY ORDERS.—A general order is to be issued making important changes in the uniforms of our troops. Sky blue cloth is to be substituted for dark blue for the pants of officers and privates of the Cavalry, Artillery and Infantry arms or service. In place of light blue welts and stripes, now used, dark blue is to be substituted, and infantry and artillery officers are permitted to wear a sky blue cavalry overcoat, the peculiarity of which is the large cape. This change is made as a measure of economy, as the saving in the cost of indigo by it is three quarters of a million of dollars.

A SECESSIONIST TAKEN IN.—A South Carolina lady, a Mrs Chisholm, sent from Charleston to Commander Bankhead of the Pembina, now on the station at Port Royal, a set of expensive coffin handles, with a note informing him that the box they were suited to adorn was ready for him as soon as he came that way. The slave sent with this present was held as contraband—Mrs Chisholm has lost a fine, likely boy by the transaction.

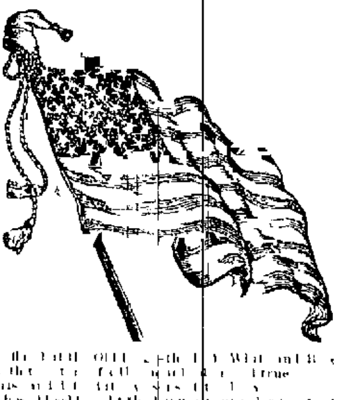
OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY



[illegible]

FRIDAY MORNING, FEB. 28, 1862

See first and fourth pages.

The Great Question

The question now before the American people is—SHALL THIS UNION AND GOVERNMENT BE SUSTAINED?

No intelligent men can doubt that for some time past there has been an organized party, mostly in the slave States, with ramifications in the free States, to break up this Government. On this coast this party has been and continues to be led by shrewd and talented men—who, in the destruction of the Government, design to form out of its ruins a Pacific Republic. The leaders of the old Breckinridge party in California and in our own State, have shadowed forth their designs to effect this object with a distinctness that shows they are in earnest. Their great effort to shape matters was to bring about the event they desire, was made in the late election in California. Our readers recollect the great interest manifested by the secession press here that their friends should be successful in that election. Had California decided for McConnell and secession, OREGON WOULD NOW BE THE THEATRE OF A CIVIL WAR. The defeat of McConnell had for a time a stunning effect on the plans of the secessionists. It threw such a despondency upon the leaders that many of them sought to escape from the country, and some did so to join the rebels in arms against the Government.

The men whose hearts are seethed in treason, in California and Oregon, are not yet disposed to succumb to the public will. That secret organization known as the KNIGHTS OF THE GOLDEN CIRCLE, have lodges in various parts of Oregon. Their principles and designs are no secret. They are sworn to put down the Government. They are at the head of the secession party here, and control their acts, and the secession press are their organs. These presses denounce the Government with all the envenomed bitterness that can come from the hearts of traitors. They seek to destroy it by encouraging the refusal to pay taxes. They falsely represent the objects of the war. They labor to give a false coloring to the movements and success of our armies. They approve of the acts of the rebels in resisting the Constitutional Government. They are in favor of European war upon our nation to make us submit to the rebels. They are the fit organs of the association who have sworn to wade knee deep in blood to break down our Union, and with it the hopes of freedom in all time to come.

Are these facts too strongly stated? Let the reader recollect that the Portland Advertiser "RECOMMENDED PRAYER TO GOD THAT OUR NATIONAL ARMS SHOULD BE PARALYZED." Let the whole course of that paper be referred to—always against the Government—never condemning the war waged against it by the traitors of the South. Look at the Oregon Democrat—the whole tenor of which is equally hostile to every act of the Government employed to sustain itself—and in the exuberance of its hopes in the success of the rebellion, pronounces the Government troops as their "ENEMY," and lauds the chief of the rebels, Beauregard and Davis as "THE GLORY OF THE LAND." Look farther at the secession press in the South of Oregon, the editor of which acts under the influence of General Lane as well as under the control of the Golden Circle. He publishes the address of the archtraitor, J. C. Breckinridge, to the people of the United States, written in the camp of the enemy, and while holding a sword ready to be flashed in the blood of Unionists—he endorses that address—recommends its preservation—and pronounces its author PURE AND PATRIOTIC. Are we wrong in denouncing such presses as in league with the enemy—and as traitors working for the rebels in the heart of the free States? We cite the secession press of Oregon—the Corvallis Union—and let it speak for itself on the great question of sustaining the Union and the Government. That paper of the 24th February says:

[illegible] SHOULD [illegible] WILL BE [illegible] POWERS IN [illegible] AS WE [illegible] SO THEY WILL [illegible]

[illegible]

He [illegible] the Corvallis Union [illegible] with Jeff Davis [illegible] Beauregard and all their [illegible] would [illegible] France and England [illegible] country [illegible] that would compel the Unionists [illegible] the land [illegible] pouring out their blood [illegible]

It is this class of papers—the organs [illegible]—that we are required to [illegible] and sustain [illegible] Many years since [illegible] which were regarded as dangerous to the peace of the South were excluded from Southern mails, and the act and policy was sustained [illegible] administrations. The same policy has been, and will be [illegible] traitorous papers in the loyal States. The time has not yet come when the organs of the Golden Circle can preach treason and rebellion in loyal communities without being held to a just responsibility. Freedom of the press, secured by the Constitution, does not extend to protect lasciviousness or treason.

THE CHINESE.—An effort, as we have already stated, has been made in California to rid that State of this unendurable nuisance of "Chinadom." The prospects are that they will endeavor to crowd themselves upon us—as they have upon British Columbia. They are in a strait betwixt two; they must leave their present dens, that is sure. They must go somewhere—that is certain.

The early step taken by the miners at the Nez Perces mines in reference to these opium eating Mongolians should be strenuously adhered to by all the miners of Oregon and Washington. There are thousands of them in California in nearly a starving condition. They are no more than dumb driven cattle owned by a company of wealthy Chinamen, and are more than ready for any new field of operations that may present itself. Let the mouth of the Columbia and the passes of the Trinity be closed against them.

The gold in these northern mines should be reserved against the drudging labor of the slave. All there is of wealth to be found, is or will be needed for the support of our own race. We are confident that there are Californians enough on their way to these new gold fields, who have learned by sad experience the evils of Mongolianism, and who will not be blind to their own interests. Let their position be a rigid one, nurtured by the noblest interests and the most sacred rights of the white man, and we are sure that the result will be a glorious one—reflecting the highest eulogy upon our institutions, civil and moral—forming a safe retreat from the pestilential scourges of a race, socially foreign and morally disgusting.

QUICK TELEGRAPHING.—The Sacramento Union of the 12th inst., says that their overland telegraph dispatch, in the issue of that date, was transmitted from Chicago at ten o'clock and forty five minutes A. M., and received in that city at nine o'clock and five minutes A. M. on same day, making a gain of one hour and forty minutes on time. This is said to be the quickest time yet made in telegraphing from the East.

Seriously, we do not believe in mobocracy, but passively we love to try the virtue of our neighbor. We have succeeded in finding one, at least, who greedily swallows the whole Cotton Confederacy—cotton and cane, nigger and all—but will choke with a republican squib, but a line in length.

The impression seems to be that Stark will be admitted to a seat in the Senate—made to swear to support the Constitution of the United States—and then expelled. His secession friends have made out this programme of the birth, life, and death of Cock Robin. All of which is likely to be true.

The Oregon Democrat has not come to hand.—Advertiser.

It has gone after Parson Brownlow's paper.

Extracts from Late Eastern Papers and Letters

IMPORTANCE [illegible] — [illegible]

[illegible] at strength and glory she will see her malign [illegible] and the commercial [illegible] We cannot forget the [illegible] of what seems to be a settled determination [illegible] seek every occasion to embarrass [illegible] Government. It is for [illegible] the interests of humanity that we have prepared for all consequences. In time of war we have prepared for war more extensive. A knowledge of this will restrain our ill-wishers and make them pause when they know we have the power and will to resist any further encroachments.

REBELS COMING.—A letter to the Alta, dated Colorado City, Jan. 27, says: "Our correspondence at Tucson reports a force of 3,000 men as on their way to Fort Yuma. 3,000 are at Mesilla, under General Sibley, and 900 at Tucson, under Colonel Baylor. They will be sure to receive a warm reception, as our gallant volunteers are anxiously awaiting their approach. It is to be hoped that we shall soon receive orders to move towards Tucson and Mesilla, as that nest hole of traitors needs a cleaning out."

Gila City was entirely destroyed by the flood.

RAIN STORMS IN CALIFORNIA.—Mr. Alexander S. Taylor, in a recent article on the rainy seasons in California, says that these immense rain storms seem to return about every twenty five or twenty seven years, with storms of only a medium severity at the expiration of every ten years, by way of compromise. The first wet winter in California, of which we have any authentic account, is that mentioned in Cabrillo's voyage—1548–49. In 1802–3 occurred another tremendous rain storm, and again in 1812. In 1824–25, 32–33, and 1842, there were still greater floods, and in 1848–49 very heavy falls of rain and snow. In 1852 the rains were heavy, since when they have been comparatively light until the recent freshet, which seems to have renewed the pluvial glories of the by gone time.

ORDERED EAST.—The Alta says: "Mr. Charles Watrous, special mail agent, will leave by the overland mail route to-morrow, having been instructed by telegraph to report personally on that route to the Committee of both Houses and the Postoffice Department. He will endeavor to have the newspapers separated from the letter mail, which will make the letter mail to be delivered in sixteen days, in Summer, and twenty in Winter."

MARTELLO TOWER.—This name is given to a small, round fortification of mason work, usually two stories high; the first being used for stores, the second for troops, and the wall terminates in parapets which shelter pivot guns. The English navy once met with one of these fortifications in Martello Bay, Corsica Island, which proved to be a very hard customer to reduce, and from this such towers took their name. From their experience of this little fortification, the English came to have a great liking for Martello towers, and when they fancied that Napoleon had some thought of visiting the "favored isle," they planted the coast with these posts of reception, thinking that if each one of them should give him as much trouble as the one which they found at Corsica did them, he would probably have a good time in coming to see them. These towers are intended for coast and river fortification, but are comparatively useless when the huge modern guns are turned against them. One was found at Tybee Island, three stories high, and built of concrete, ten inches in thickness.

AMERICAN VESSELS ON THE LAKES.—The late warlike spirit manifested on the part of the press of England, has induced the owners of vessels to send for such of their craft as are now in winter quarters on the Canadian side. Several are expected very soon, and one, the schooner Pilot, has already arrived in port. The hostile attitude of the Canadian press and people towards us, has doubtless much to do with the scampering of American vessels. Our neighbors over the line seem demented. Can they doubt for a moment that a war between the United States and England would bring swift ruin upon them?—Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.

The Daily Oregonian.

CITY.

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

"AS LIFE [illegible] BEAUTIFUL HE LAY." We noticed some miners yesterday bringing on a hand-sled a buck, which they had killed in the [illegible] mountains. These California [illegible] to have a correct idea of killing time, [illegible] waiting for the river to break up. They [illegible] dance, boat it on the river, and have all [illegible] of ways to enjoy themselves. Well, their modes of life have learned them to take things just as they come, and feel at home anywhere. The experience of several years' mining on this coast is an excellent school—makes a philosopher out of a man.

THE CITY SUED FOR DAMAGES.—G. W. Vaughn has commenced suit against the city of Portland for damages in the sum of seventeen thousand dollars, which he alleges he sustained by the removal of a frame building from his wharf in the year 1859 by the then city authorities. Sheriff Starr served the papers on Mayor Brock, yesterday.

DANGEROUS.—There is a regular San Francisco dock man-trap at the head of Commercial wharf, caused by the absence of several planks. It is a dangerous hole, and it would be a good idea for the proper person to see that it is repaired. Look to it, somebody.

LARGE MAIL.—Another large overland mail arrived from the South last evening. Notwithstanding the bad condition of the roads and the deficiency in bridges, the Stage Company bring the mail through in schedule time.

PRISONERS.—There are four prisoners in the county jail, at present, boarding with Mr. Arnold at public expense.

THE RIVER.—The river at this point had risen, up to last night, three feet in the forty-eight hours previous.

GOOD PRICE.—Potatoes are selling in this city at four dollars per bushel. Much dearer than apples.

BUSY.—The pile-driver is now constantly busy driving piles along the city's front.

SPRING STOCK.—We call attention to the advertisement of J. Haas & Co., boot and shoe dealers, in the building lately occupied by the post-office. They have a large and well selected stock of spring goods. Look for the sign of a big boot.

LATEST FROM CHINA AND JAPAN.—By the ship Swordfish, thirty-six and a-half days from Hongkong, we have advices and papers from China to the 3d of January.

THE CAPTURE OF NINGPO.—The Chinese journals are filled with accounts of the capture of Ningpo by the Taiping rebels, whose advances the Allies were said to be on the point of uniting to put down. The attack was commenced on the 8th of December and was kept up vigorously during that day and night. On the following morning they succeeded in scaling the walls, and having opened the west and south gates, entered and took possession of the city without any further positive resistance. Not many were killed on either side, and the rebels are said for once to have refrained from the perpetration of those atrocities which marked their earlier successes. The city Zoushin, the last place taken before entering Ningpo, was made the scene of indiscriminate massacre and pillage, which was not begun, however, until the rebels had become settled in possession. The same was the case with all other places taken, and would probably have been the case at Ningpo, had not that city been nearly deserted by its panic stricken occupants. Promises of leniency were made, but all the better population had abandoned the city and refused to return. The possession of a city on the coast whereby they can import munitions of war without interruption, is an event of immense importance to the rebel cause, and their capture of one of the Treaty Ports will be regarded as an inauspicious event at the moment when the friendly relations of the Allies with the Imperial Government at Pekin were becoming more firmly established by the late change of the Ministry. Trade was, of course, entirely suspended.

The Commander of the Imperial forces at Ningpo, escaped on a British steamer. Upon the capture of the city, the French Admiral and the British and American consuls met and broke up the custom establishment causing all duties that the "mercenaries" had collected to be returned. The city was said to have been captured through complicity on the part of the French Admiral.

FROM JAPAN, we learn, that some difficulty had occurred in regard to the opening of Yedo to foreign trade. Several additional ports were soon to be opened.

Coughs.—[illegible]

The Medical and Surgical Institute of DR. L. J. CZAPKAY is [illegible] in a position which places it as well as its proprietor far above the assaults of envy and professional malice. In the schools of France the highest prizes are often awarded to practitioners in this department of medical science, and they occupy, with others, an equally lofty position in the profession. [illegible] illustrious example [illegible] among the philosophical stars of [illegible] and Dr. Czapkay has fully equalled him in this country, as a proof of which the Philadelphia [illegible] Medical College complimented him with a Diploma and [illegible] Selecting this as his field of operation although a [illegible] of the University of Pesth and late Chief Surgeon of the Hungarian Revolutionary army. For more extended labors Dr. L. J. Czapkay has bent his earnest attention to the cure of chronic and private diseases, in which he has become so great an expert, that he is now regarded as the leader in this branch of his profession throughout the United States, and his portrait and biography are published as matter of interest to their readers in the most exclusive journals. The Doctor's offices are at his Medical and Surgical Institute, on Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, nearly opposite the buildings of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, San Francisco. We ask particular attention of our readers to the sworn certificates of remarkable cures in another column of this paper. Persons not wishing to lose time in corresponding, please enclose $ in their letters and they will get immediate attention to their cases. Address, L. J. CZAPKAY, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.

Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE

SHOULD BE WELL MADE, simple in its construction, and easily kept in order; should make A TIGHT LOCK-STITCH, alike on both sides of the material, and should sew any and all materials that can be sewed.

It should be able to use cotton, thread, or silk, directly from the spool, and to sew from coarse to fine, and from thick to thin, with rapidity, and without changing the tension. It should also be able to make the tension greater or less, on both the under and upper threads, and with uniformity; and should have a straight needle; curved ones being liable to break.

The needle should have perpendicular motion—this is absolutely necessary for heavy work.

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with a hemmer; should stitch, fell, run and gather; and always ready to work.

It should be capable of using the same size thread on both sides of the work, and of using different colored thread or silk, above or below, to correspond with any two colors of cloth to be united.

It should be able to make a long or short stitch, and to fasten off the seam, and commence sewing tightly at the first stitch, and to run easily, and make but little noise.

It should have a wheel-feed; no others are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be liable to get out of order; neither should it require a screw-driver or wrench to set the needle.

It should not be liable to oil the operator's dress.

It should not form a ridge on the under side, nor ravel.

Cured of Smoking.

A wild girl was Mattie Lee. I knew her when she was but fifteen—she was first in every mischief, a favorite with the [illegible] and yet the chief who [illegible] than any. [illegible] I saw [illegible] rest upon her brow. I knew her when a grown up young lady, she was [illegible] very pretty [illegible] [illegible] with all the [illegible] [illegible] which oft met the [illegible] that caused a shade to fall upon the [illegible]. I knew her [illegible] when a true heart I were [illegible] her hand with her heart [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of our village [illegible]. Now [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] many [illegible] [illegible] young men, had [illegible] habits—he would smoke. [illegible] Mattie [illegible] it would [illegible] [illegible] but she [illegible] [illegible] curing [illegible] as they would have [illegible] with [illegible] and tears, entreating him for the love he [illegible] to give up the [illegible] weed, [illegible] Mattie took a plan [illegible] and it was somewhat this:

They were [illegible] one room, the second story front. On a certain evening [illegible] [illegible] Mattie busied herself with putting the room in perfect order—placed every chair where it belonged, [illegible] [illegible] the table and the mantle ornaments in the most tasteful manner. After taking a careful survey of the room, and satisfying herself that everything was as it should be, she went to a bureau and took from one of its drawers a small package, neatly wrapped in tissue paper—some new jewel probably, you will say, with which she intends adorning herself to meet her lord. She carefully unrolled the paper, and took from it a new spotless tobacco pipe, then opening at one end a little roll of carefully [illegible] silver paper, she commenced stuffing the pipe with fine cut tobacco. How strange her little white fingers looked diving into the hateful stuff. The pipe well filled, she laid it on the table, placed a match beside it, and seated herself to await the coming of her "better half."

Soon she heard the street door open, and a well known footstep in the hall below. Quickly lighting the match she applied it to the sweet scented herb in the pipe, re-seated herself, and when the husband entered, sat quietly by the stove, wreaths of blue smoke curling gracefully above her head, which was thrown back in that peculiar position of enjoyment which gentlemen usually assume while puffing the weed.

Mr. P. had opened the door with visions of Mattie's smiling face looking lovingly on him floating through his mind. How different the picture that met his astonished gaze! On hearing the door open, Mattie looked up, and seeing her husband, deliberately took the pipe from her mouth and wished him "good evening," as though nothing unusual had happened, then quietly resumed her smoking. Richard regarded her with a mixture of surprise and horror for a few moments, and then gave vent to his feelings in words.

"Why, Mattie, have you suddenly lost your senses?"

"I do not see any very strong evidence of such being the case," answered the lady addressed, then as if comprehending the cause of his astonishment, she asked—"Is it possible, Richard, that you did not know of my habit of smoking? Did I—did none of our family ever tell you of it?"

It may be well here to state that my friend Mattie was not always as scrupulous in adhering to truth as she might have been, at least she did not think it very objectionable, under some circumstances, "to do evil that good might come."

Each particular hair of Richard's head seemed to stand on an end, in contemplating the tale unfolded by that one word, habit. The only outward manifestation he made of the state of his feelings, was an emphatic "Impossible!" accompanied by a look of pious horror.

"Why impossible, my dear? Had I acquired the habit lately, I should only have been treading in your foot-steps, thereby showing my willingness to be guided, as a dutiful wife should be, by the inclinations of my husband, and a laudable desire to consult, in all things, his tastes; but I have no such commendable motives to offer. I was influenced wholly by a desire to please myself. I used to think before we were married, that I would give up the practice and never let you know that it had been; but since I found how much it adds to your enjoyment, and you have told me so often how much your pleasures are heightened by being shared by me, I have almost concluded that it is my duty to continue it. How delightful it will be to sit together during the long winter evenings, and thus taste the delights of social intercourse. Come, sit down, I have here a cigar in readiness for you; I prefer the old fashioned pipe."

By this time, Richard's brain was well nigh stupefied.

"It cannot be possible that my wife would so degrade herself!" he at length exclaimed.

"Why, Richard, it seems to me that you are making a great ado about a small matter. I do not think it so dreadful to enjoy a harmless innocent pipe, here in my room occasionally, where no one can possibly know of it but yourself. Besides, if there is any degradation in the practice, as you hinted a moment ago, I am only coming down to a level with my husband. You expect me to love you, notwithstanding the habit; why not vice versa? And I care not what others think," and Mattie now looked up in his face with such an expression of veneration for him and [illegible] that he alone [illegible] [illegible] felt.
